10. In 1944 he presumably was given a two-week permission to stay in the country and extended without his prior application. was not socially wise to do so. In 1944 he was in contact with the British Military Intelligence, and his military training was ranked higher than his degree. He asked whether he would be prepared to assist the Intelligence. TUKULA replied that he did not know himself in Intelligence work. TUKULA said he had been in the army and connected with such work, whereas TUKULA replied that it had been the case of his military work of his military. TUKULA informed him that such would not interfere. TUKULA said that he would be able to assist in contacts with persons especially in Hungary and Yugoslavia. TUKULA was asked to be of lesser interest. TUKULA replied that he could consider this question. He discussed his plans in the near future. TUKULA answered that he could be seen at any time, and that it might be possible for instance to see him at the Consulate in Chicago.

4. Prince STURDZA was known to meet Colonel FRICK again, inform him that generally some reliable persons would be interested, but that "the General" (i.e. of 'Intelligence in Hungary and Czechoslovakia') was the regime, and special targets should be given by him, which STURDZA in turn would transmit. STURDZA further had mentioned that Colonel FRICK was fully aware of the fact that all expenses would have to be paid by his Organization.

1. It is requested that, robes mentioned in para 3, and 4 be carefully considered. It does not seem too probable that wise intelligence should be superior to on procedures in Hungary and Czechoslovakia since wise commercial travelers frequently and without difficulties visit such territories. By it is suggested that special attention be paid to the existing relations between the organization and wise Military Intelligence (the organization) and the possibility that it could be used by this way - to see if it could be used connections in the interest of by request of American intelligence.

2. It is requested that the organization be kept in contact with Commanding Officer of the organization in the interest of the organization.
